existing in this section. A few days ago, when in Governor Holden's office, I saw a mutilated negro who had suffered the most excrucialing agony for his political sentiments. At the dead hour of night he and his wife were taken to the woods by a band of masked desperadoes. The man's ears were borribly cut and other indignities visited upon him. The wife suffered also severe and internal panishment. In the morning they made their way to a magistrate, who declared he could do nothing for them. The sheriffs and magistrates in some of the counties are of no earthly importance.

The negro, suffering from his terrible wounds walked thirty miles to this city. He related the case to the Governor, who seemed justly indignant. Nothing, however, could be done for the near fellow. The minita are of no account. They have no arms furnished. General Miles, the District Commander, offered a squad of men to vindicate the national authority in the punisbment of that infamous band of conspirators For some reason the proposition was not accepted, and the unhung villains are yet at large roaming through the country.

Effect of the Recent Election. In a letter from Memphis, Tenn., to a Northern journal we find the following: - One effect the recent elections is certainly destined to be an immense impetus to improvements of every description lending to the development of the country. Already there seems a general disposition on every hand to vie with each other in advancing any and all schemes for the improvement of the country at large. In no section of the Union is this spirit beginning to develop itself in a more marked degree than in Arkapsas. Though over thirty years since its admission as a State, Arkansas, under the rule of an immense slave oligarchy and landed aristocracy, made literally no advancement at all.

During all that time, up to the commence ment of the war, though originally admitted with immense donations of public lands for school purposes, throughout alt its vast down un but one single public school or library ever existed. Nearly all the rich lands of the State were held by slave driving monopolists, who owned almost the entire Arkan-as river valley; a vailey destined to yet rival in richness the most favored spots of the earth. In order to hold these lands, a most unjust system of taxation was instituted and kept up, by which the poorer settlers in the comparatively barren hills were taxed upon a valuation of $10 to $12 per acre, while the rich lands of the aristocrats were held at from 20 to 30 cents.

Not the slightest provision was made for in ernal improvements of any kind, and up to the present day but forty miles of railroad are in operation within the State, and trains make but semi-weekly trips at that. Nearly the whole of the State is a vast wilderness, through which the wild beasts roam at will. The masses of the people are sleeped in the grossest ignorance and in many respects interior to the Indians of the Cherokee reservation. So much for the march of improvement under, and the refining influences of, a slave oligarchy.

REVERDY JOHNSON.

His Personal History and Peculiarities -His Mission to England.

The Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Democrat gives the following interesting personal history of Reverly Johnson:

The old legal and social acquaintances of Mr. Johnson say this (I quote the exact words, very nearly, from a leading lawyer of Frederick Maryland):"Reverdy is over there in England merely advocate. He went there to settle these Aisbama claims, and he means to do it. Johnson took him for the place, knowing his power and amiliarity with English statesmen, and Reverdy has been quietly establishing a social and pro essional correspondence with that side these fifteen or twenty years-not with this particular des gn in mind, of course, but with the intent to distinguish himself some day in patriotic diplomacy."

"Does Mr. Johnson love the English people?" I said to the same gentleman.

"Yes, we all do-the gentlemen, that is, of old English descent in the former colonies of Maryland and Virginia. England has no such friends as the lawyers of the Maryland bar-students of her common law. At the same time Reverdy is a stout American patriot. He took musket as a private soldier at the battle o Bladensburg, in the volunteer company of William Pinckney, and a snot fired over his head (for he is a low man in stature) killed a tall man directly behind him.
"Yes, sir! Reverdy is a thorough patriot. His attitude at the beginning of this war was as resolute as a prize-fighter's. He is a perfect bull-dog even at his age of seventy-five, and would fight a duel to day as quick as he would

MR. JOHNSON AS A FIRE-EATER. I find that I cannot write this story of Mr. Johnson with the spirit it should have, unless give the name of my chief informant, and this am not authorized to do. Sufficient it is to ay that he is a contemporary at the bar and a cinsman of Mr. Johnson, a secessionist and political opponent of our Minister Plenipoten-Thus much expressed, let me continue his sketch in the conversational form in which it occurree. "Mr. Johnson, you say, is a fighting man? I thought his remarkable trait was his want of moral broness and his abiding amiability. The two things are consistent, Most men with moral weakness accept a physical quarrei as an escape. I mean that Mr. Johnson, with a pervading disposition to be agreeable and have no violence, is a fire-cater in physical brawls, At his age he would challenge any man to-day who in pugned his faith in his diplomacy. O course, he cannot take notice of 'newspaper criticisms.'" "Did he ever fight?" "I am not aware that he ever did, but after the failure of the Bank of Maryland, in which his name was associated with much reproach, Mr. Johnson eballenged a number of people and permitted none to escape without apology. He lost his eye, you know, because of a duel,"

"How did he lose that eye, su?"
"Well! a North Carolina Congressman named Stanley had been bull-ragging Henry A. Wise, with the determination to make the latter fight or be frightened. Wise finally resolved to suffer this thing to more, but to bring it to a head, so, at a horse-race near Washington City, no ran his horse violently against Stanley's, and then, pretending to believe that Stanley was aggressor, turned sharply round and cut the latter with a stick. Stauley had to chal-lenge Wise, of course, and he want to Reverdy's neighborhood, near Baltimore, to learn how to use the pistol. Some say Reverdy was teaching him. At any rate Reverly went out to see him fire one day. Stanley's bullet struck a tree and glanced, shot Reverdy in the eye, brought h m down, and nearly killed him. He lay in bed a long wide, his life despaired of. The friends of Stanley and Wise stopped the duel, and Reveroy's misfortune was kept out of the

'Does that lost eye give Mr. Johnson any trouble now-a-days?" "Yes, sir. A cataract has formed over his other eye and he is rext to stone blind. They show him a good deal of attention in England (I get letters from him), and he says that in the galleries of noblemen and gentlemen they show him a good many painting. With the old fel-low's plausible amiability he replies that they are beautiful, but he says he never sees anything better informed in regard to events transpiring in this island than Harana journals thematives, and ceptes most of the Cuba news from a wife; but then he loved her. -An Indian rajah has just paid $12,000 for

at all."

INJURIOUS REFECTS OF CAST-IRON STOVES .- The jublic mind has been somewhat agt ated by the recent action of that repository of useful knowledgethe French Academy of Sciences, which, at its into sitting in Faris, deliberated upon the extremety inbrions effects upon the health of cast-iron stoves arriving at the conclusion that the heated surface generates by drogen from organic matter raised to a high temperature. It was also said that, by the use of such stoves, fevers were produced, bearing analogy to those generated by marsh gas, the high tempera ture decomposing the insensible perspiration, gen+ rating ammonia, which is always prejudical to health. It did not require an expression of opinio from the French Academy to prove the deterioration of the atmosphere resulting from the use of cast-iron and unlined cylinder stoves, as it has long been known that their use as heat generators has been ex. ceedingly injurious to health. Not alone the occupants of private rooms, halls, steamboat cabins, and notel-rooms have had cause to complain of its enervating effects, but salesmen in stores and clerks in offices have had their efficiency impaired by inhaling the poisonous atmosphere, which renders them drowsy, nervous, thirsty, and debilitated, preventing their usefulness and permanently lajuring their

This is not the case with stoves having a clay lining, as the deleterious matter complained of is not generated when the heat passes through such a medium' and the use of such aloves is recommended by the highest scientific and medical authority. Sprand BROTHER, Nos. 1116 and 1118 Market street, have manufactured a large number of the most approved styles of clay-Hued, gas-burning sitting-room, office and salesroom stoves, which they offer to the trade and to individuals desiring an excellent, durable, and healthful heater, at low rates, to enable them to make alterations in their already spacious storerooms to accommodate their extensive trade. The Grover & Baker Sewing Machines (the Philadelphia agency for which is located at No. 710 Chesnut street) have done a better thing. They have not merely stood the test of time, but have stood the test of competition with all the world as well, and not only preserved their original popularity, but greatly enhanced it. This is mainly due to the fact that the proprietors have steadily continued to add to the perfection of their instruments, until now it is not overestimating the fact to say that the Grover & Baker Sewing Ms. chines combine in themselves all the excellencies that periain to any and all the other sewing machine extant.
